A writer eventually gets to the necessity of acquiring a new typewriter ribbon. I have just done so. But the truth is, I have never mastered the art of installing a new typewriter ribbon. I was smoking my pipe on the above occasion, re - loaded it several times, rubbed my hands all over my face, and at long last went to wash up. I gazed into the mirrow and said, 'That can't be me . . . that's Andrew H. Brown!'

Somehow I always disliked to turn pages and read the continuation of a news story. I can get lengthy and try to squeeze in an extra paragraph, but as of now, I say very humbly, 'hang around until next Thursday.'

Leonard Nathaniel Gregory

Leonard Nathanial Gregory, 76, of 1405 Findlay St., Portsmouth, Ohio, died at his residence at 7:45 p.m. on Sunday, June 16, 1963. Born March 15, 1887, he was a son of Nathaniel and Patty E. Gregory, of Appomattox, Va.

Seventh-Day Adventist Church 13th Sabbath Offering. June 29—
The Inter-American Division will benefit from the 13th Sabbath offering overflow for the second quarter 1963. This is a far flung field covering great distances between thirty countries and island groups, consecration to the spread of the gospel then is evidenced by the 2,806,698 Bible students now during 1961.

The Appomattox Adventist Church members will contribute their Sabbath to a project in Mexico City, which will eventually see 10 Adventist churches erected there. There are at present 5 Seventh-Day Adventist churches in the city.

Mrs. Vaden Townsend, Sabbath School Supt., stated that present plans are for two community centers with a seating capacity of 200 to 300 people. These will later become churches

The church has also heard a report on the medical project for the past quarter — the Port-of Spain Community Hospital in Trinidad, West Indies. THE HOSpital is adding a new wing which will bring its in-patient capacity to 100, the hospital now has 60 beds and is constantly filled to capacity. New up-to-the minute equipment is being added also in order to continue its efficient service to the community the report said.

The Seventh - Day Adventist denomination operates 114-similar sanitariums and hospitals throughout the world plus a like number of clinics, not including mobile clinics working in the field at set intervals in connection with established hospitals.

Pastor William E. Carpenter will be back from Camp Meeting and assume his regular pastorial duties next Sabbath, June 29.

Sabbath School 9:30
Worship Service 11:00
Mid-Week Prayer Service will continue at 6 o'clock.

Dr. John B. Cunningham, Moderator of the Synod of Virginia, will be the guest speaker at the Appomattox Court House Presbyterian Church this Sunday morning, June 30 at 11 a.m. He will be occupying the pulpit in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. M. G. Stimpson, who with his family will be away on a week's vacation.

Dr. Cunningham is well known in the Church and in the community. He preached the sermon when Mr. Stimpson was installed as pastor of the Appomattox Group of Churches in May 1962. He was the speaker in a week of Revival services at Walker's Church at Hixburg in August of last year. He is a native of Prince Edward County and a former resident of Pamplin.

The Congregation cordially extends an invitation to all who would like to share with them in this worship service.

To The Voters
Of APPOMATTOX COUNTY

I would like to remind you again the importance of the Sheriff's Office and ask you to consider my training and experience as a police officer, when you vote on July 9th.

Public Office is a serious public trust. Its duties and responsibilities must be faithfully performed to protect and further the best interest of the people.

One of the highest ambitions any American citizen can have is to serve the people of his county. The surest foundation for an office is built on one's past record.

It is my ernest desire to serve you to the best of my ability if elected.

Sincerely,
LENWOOD L. STANLEY

Comforts childish tears with no apparent regret
That the creature she's cuddling is making a mess
Of not only her person out also her dress!
She listens to secrets that are brought from home
All the while pretending nothing shocking is known
How can we ever praise them enough
As into small heads that glorious knowledge they stuff?
What should children be taught before they start school?
The A B C's? The Golden Rule?

Better, far better 'twould be
To teach fundamentals that are plain to see:
To tie the shoes — to toilet train
To answer when called upon by name!
The teacher, DEAR teacher knows just the ways
To teach the 3 R's pretending he plays.
We are happy clear through, every one,
That teacher makes learning such wonderful fun.
So, while we are grateful to the Lord above,
Let us be thankful for a teacher's love.

—Alice H. Folks (Mrs. H. D.)

Pastor Speaks

Pastor Says—

A HAPPY HOME is the best stabilizing factor in our frustrated and tense society. Most of us can master and handle all the problems that are thrust upon us by today's world, if we have a home that is serene, safe and lovable to come to at the close of each day. This kind of home is not easy to establish and maintain. It takes much planning and an unalterable faith in God, but it can be established and maintained. This can become one major factor in the solution of the problems of today's world. In the office of a friend there is the large sign—"Tension. To be reminded of it each time one looks up, may be a good therapy. For we have a tendency to forget the source of our agitation at times, thus we fall in the solution of tension. The Proverbs, word of wisdom and insight, states that the 'fear or reverence of the Lord is the beginning of instruction of wisdom' Prov. 15:33. Perhaps it is at this point we should begin. It is here that the foundation of happiness will be established. Who knows better than Solomon the collector and author of many of these bits of wisdom'. God is the author of life, thru all the factors that go into life's happiness.

For example, he talks about having a cheerful disposition, 'A merry heart' he calls it. This will change the countenance of personality so that the tensions and frustrations can be dealt with a glow of the presence of God. This does make a difference.

Then mutual love. 'Better is a desire of herbs where love is . . .'. It is far better to live in modesty than in a mansion if love has to be sacrificed. Following mutual love the wisdom writer alludes to the gentleness of nature, an understanding mind, and the fear of the Lord as being qualities of life which enrich the home life, thereby making for happiness.

Do you want the Lord to help you to be a source of strength and joy in your home? Then, fear Him, reverence Him, and worship Him.

I hope Sunday finds you in God's house worshipping Him. Take your family with you.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Bible Material: I Chronicles 16. Psalms 146; 147; 150.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 148: 16-a.

Praise The Lord

Lesson for June 30, 1963

There used to be a children's game that went like this: the first child would say, "I love my love with an A because she's Attractive," and the next would say, "I love my love with a B because she's Beautiful" . . . and so on down the alphabet. Grown people can play at the same game. But it becomes serious when you are grown up. There's a curious thing about love, though; at the moment you feel most enthusiastic and grateful about one you love, you don't need reasons. Yet there are reasons, or ought to be. To love without thinking of reasons is good; to love against all reason and common sense, is bad. Praise the Lord, Because . . .

It is so in religion. When you are in the mood to praise God you are not figuring out reasons for doing so. You just praise Him out of a full and overflowing heart. But there are the best of reasons for praising the God we love. The unknown poet who wrote the 146th Psalm does not put in the word "because" anywhere. He begins the psalm with "Praise the Lord!" and he ends it in the same words. ("Hallelujah" means literally "Praise the Lord.") Between these two shots of praise, however, he says a number of things about God, and they all add up to reasons why we ought to do this. We should never praise Him from a feeling of duty. That would be like a man who would kiss his wife every morning at 7:30 sharp because his memorandum book had in it the line: 7:30 a.m. Kiss Wife. But praise is not senseless, it is emotional but emotion-with-a-reason. In the high moments of worship we are not doping out reasons why; but in quiet moments when we have time to think, we can think of reasons in plenty, and we know we were not carried away by mere sheer emotion when we sang our Hallelujahs.

The Source of all Good

God is the source of all good: this is the belief of all Christians and Jews, and certainly is the teachine of the Bible. (Why this is so, the reader may figure out for himself.) This means that God does not simply discover good,—that is, goodness, beauty, and truth in any of their manifold forms—God does not "latch on" to what He discovers and claims the credit Himself. He is the Originator, the Planner, the Creator, the Rewarder, of what is good. Consider the matters for which the Psalmist wishes God to be remembered and thanked. First of all is Creation itself: then he mentions God's faithfulness, and His justice, and His providential care' for the "forgotten man," the hungry and the oppressed. When a prisoner is set free; when the blind are enabled to see; when the mourner is comforted; when a man becomes a righteous character; when the helpless are cared for (widows, orphans and traveling strangers were the words for people in the world of that day); when a wicked man like Hitler for example is brought to ruin: this calls for praise to the Lord who reigns forever.

Two Questions

The skeptic has a question to ask at this point—here in fact. One is this: Hasn't the Psalmist let his imagination run away with him? If he knew the kind of world this is, he would realize that widows and orphans are not always helped, justice is not always done, most blind people are not healed. And as for the world, the skies, earth and seas "and all that is in them," are we to believe that God created disease germs and parasites, are we obliged to believe that God personally makes volcanoes kill thousands of helpless people? If God is the source of all good, must He not also take the blame for all the evil?

These questions can be answered together, though this calls for much discussion. To be sure, it is seldom — some would say never, that God directly does these things. In virtually all cases He works through persons. And that is the answer to the first question: if good is not done, it is not that God has forgotten. It is we who have failed to let Him work through us for good.
